Report of the Lecture:

The 4th installment of the Louis Pasteur Memorial Endowment Lecture was organized by the PG & Research Department of Microbiology at the NGP Conference Centre on 06th March 2020. Prof. Dr. T. J. Pandian, Former National Professor, Madurai Kamaraj University, Madurai, was the Resource Person addressing the students on the topic “The Indian Microbiology: A Zoologist

View”. The event was organized along with the National Conference on Futuristic Approaches in Transformation of Bioscience Research (FATBR-2020), which was a culmination of all Faculty of Biosciences. All the Staff members and students belonging to the Faculty of Biosciences took part and benefitted from the event.

Before the induction of the lecture a briefing about Louis Pasteur and the formation of an Endowment Lecture in his name was spelt out to the audiences by the MoC.

Prof. Dr. T. J. Pandian, addressed the students on various aspects surrounding the field of Biosciences illuminating and motivating the younger minds to take up research as their career. His idea was to give the students an insight on how discoveries in the past happened and how important it is to hone their observation and intellectual skills. He even suggested students to become entrepreneurs in their areas

He then interacted with the students taking questions from them. The major motto of creating such an endowment lecture is to motivate students and to make them interact with the best in the business, which was satisfied at the end of the lecture with all the students giving positive feedback about the event.
