An Eco education nature camp from 7th to 10th February 2018 was organized by the Eco Club of Dr. N.G.P. Arts and Science College, Coimbatore and conducted by Prof. P.Kandasamy, Camp Director-Eco Education Nature Camps. Totally, 76 girl students from various departments were participated in the camp along with the 4 faculty members

Activities of the camp

Date: 07/02/2018

Day1: Wednesday

The journey started from Dr.N.G.P Arts and Science College at early morning and reached to Parson Valley by afternoon. The accommodation was provided by the Forest Department at Parson Valley, to the staff and students and all had their lunch.

After the lunch, the students were asked to assemble in the hall and were briefed about the regulations to be followed during the camp. The students got ready for the evening trek to nearby forest at the onset of evening. The students were very much excited and enjoyed the trek though it was difficult and first trekking experience for the majority of the students. As the trekking continued after sunset, wild darkness has already spread across the woods. That was the most dreadful challenge. The students trekked through the narrow steep hills with the help of torch light and reached back to the cottage at 7:30 pm. The evening session started at 8 pm in the hall. During the session the students were asked about the experience.

In that session, Prof. P.Kandasamy highlighted the origin and meaning of the word ‘Nilgiri’. The word ‘Nila’ denotes Blue and ‘Giri’ denotes Hills, which literally means ‘Blue Hills’. The purplish blue kurinji flower (Strobilanthes kunthianus) shrubs that bloom only once in 12 years gave rise to the name ‘Nilgiri’. Much of the ‘Nilgiris’ natural montane grasslands and shrub lands interspersed with sholas has been much disturbed or destroyed by extensive coffee and tea plantations, extensive commercial planting and harvesting of non-native plantations like eucalyptus, pine and wattle trees and cattle grazing.

The session concluded at 9pm after which delicious dinner was served. After the dinner the students were briefed about the next day’s program and were let off for sleep.

The students were guided all along the trek by the concerned member of staff. On the way through the forest land, the students witnessed bones and other remains of many animals attacked by predators. After the lunch, Prof. P.Kandasamy briefly explained about the forest environment and its need for mankind. He also explained about different types of forests such as deciduous forest, tropical and sub-tropical forest, wet evergreen forest that exist in south India. Types of rocks, species of plants and brief history of deforestation that caused loss of habitats in forests of India, destruction of grasslands and sholas during the British era for various purposes. Grasslands and sholas that is rich in its own biodiversity.

Flora & fauna of shola grassland are unique; they are home to most of the birds endemic to Western Ghats. Like black – orange flycatcher, pipit, Nilgiri laughing thrush, and mammals like Nilgiri langur and most endangered species. The grassland is being rapidly closed in by various woody exotic species for example Lantana camera, UlexEuropaeus, Acacia mearnsii, Schoch broom and wattle. These plants are not native plants of the grassland. In the middle of 19th century, British set their sights in the upper Nilgiris because there was close resemblance of climate and vegetation with their homeland. They cut the shola trees for need of timber and fire wood. Some of the forest conscious Britishers did take some care to protect sholas, though. Since grasslands were considered as wastelands they were turned into farming land. They started to plant exotic plant wattle, pine, Acacia mearnssii, eupatorium varieties, Scotch broom, resulting in decline in number of population of NilgiriTahr (an Asian goat antelope). The reason was that those exotic plants competed with the grass land species for soil nutrients resulting in stunted growth.

As it was time to move on, the students continued adventurous trekking across brooks, streams and mire. The students returned to the cottage in the evening. After a short break which included evening tea and snacks, the students assembled in the hall for the evening session lead by Prof.P.Kandaswamy. The students were given an opportunity to watch documentary film regarding Western Ghats, features of Western Ghats, flora and fauna existing in Western Ghats. It greatly enhanced the knowledge about the geographical features of Western Ghats. Western Ghats contribute to one among the “hot-spots” of biological diversity in the world. The Western Ghats extend from the Satpura Range in the north, stretching from Gujarat to Tamil Nadu. It covers the states of Maharashtra, Goa, Karnataka and Kerala. Major gaps in the range are the Goa Gap, between the Maharashtra and Karnataka sections, and the Palghat Gap on the Tamil Nadu and Kerala border between the Nilgiri Hills and the Anaimalai Hills. PalGhat, ThalGhat and Bhore Ghats are the most important gaps in the Western Ghats. The northern portion of the narrow coastal plain between the Western Ghats and the Arabian Sea is known as the Konkan, the central portion is called Kanara and the southern portion is called Malabar. In the southern part of the range is Anamudi (2,695 metres (8,842 ft.)), the highest peak in Western Ghats.

The session concluded with a documentary on Tiger Reserve Forest, awareness about rules, regulations and Acts persisting in the country followed by serving dinner. The students came to the fact that “If there are no tigers in the forest, there is no forest and also there is no water in the pipes”.

Day 3: Friday

The routine followed as the students woke up early in the morning, gathering in the hall at 8 a.m. The morning session briefed an introduction to Shola forest. Shola finds its origin from Tamil word ‘chulai’ meaning thicket, cold place. Shola forests are found in the higher altitude hill regions of the Nilgiris, Kanyakumari district, Idukki district, the Western Ghats and related ranges in the states of Karnataka, Kerala and Tamil Nadu. Generally found to occur above 2000 meters above sea level, Shola - grasslands are rich store houses of biodiversity and also home to extremely rich wildlife. They consist of dwarf trees growing around 25-30 feet height. Its vegetation is double layered with closed canopy top which hardly permits a single ray of sunlight to penetrate in the natural vegetation.

After the morning session lecture, the participants were taken into a shola forest. The calmness and the greenery of the Shola was major attraction. The heavenly beauty of Shola captured every single heart. The students were supposed to maintain complete silence inside the Shola as not to disturb the habitat. During the trekking inside the shola Prof.P.Kandasamy explained the definition of shola. A Shola forest may be defined as a temperate wet evergreen forest, with cauliflower tops in the canopy and with multicoloured foliage. Shola forest can be found only in the mountain slopes of western ghats, particularly in Nilgiris, Anaimalais and palni hills. Shola tree barks and rocks are covered with green mosses. Here every living organism is not independent but interdependent. The inside of Shola is always maintained between 12 to 17°C which is known as microclimate. The students were given an opportunity to witness few samples of plants, leaves that included wild pepper, orchids, cinnamon, bay leaves, mosses and lichens. The students were fascinated to learn about the interdependence of mosses and lichens. These little plants lie upon the rocks, secrete an acid which dissolves the hard minerals. They have the power to condense moisture from the air for they must have water as food. When lichens disappear, they give early warning of harmful conditions. Also, lichens, mosses, and cyanobacteria together form a microbiotic crust, which stabilizes soil and is a major source of nitrogen in certain ecosystems, all of which are threatened by overgrazing and development.

Some shola area suffered from excessive burning, resulting in shrinkage of forest and fire is also one of the major factors which not only depletes undergrowth but also facilitates the seed germination of fast invading, weed plants by breaking seed dormancy. Shola is a very sensitive type of vegetation. Once it vanishes from its original habitat, it is very difficult to make it reappear in view of the change in climate which does not allow shola seedling to grow in open grasslands, the few remaining shola - grassland landscape are found inside the Mukurthi national park on the western slopes of the Nilgiris and in vicinity of Avalanche.

Unfortunately nearly 80% of the original environment has been destroyed by encroachment, ignorance of its value and more than 60% of the grassland has disappeared, shola-grass lands are declining at an alarming rate. Deforestation for purpose of agriculture has sounded the death knell for shola and grasslands as well as warning bells for the flora and fauna of Nilgirisgrassland. It is necessary to document the unique biodiversity and evolve strategies to conserve this vital and threatened ecosystem, urgent action needs to be taken by all of us to save this priceless natural heritage at any cost. Deforestation not only affects the biodiversity of flora and fauna of shola-grassland but it results in a severe imbalance of whole ecosystem. Hence, arise the need to conserve the portrait of the Indian Forest.

It was time for lunch as the students moved out of Shola. All of them enjoyed their packed lunch. After the lunch they clicked few snaps and viewed the Porthimund dam. After the dinner, a small session was conducted in the hall which included guidelines for appearing civil service exam by Prof.P.Kandasamy.

Day 4: Saturday

The students woke up early in the morning for the activities of the concluding day. The day started as usual with morning assembly and breakfast.

After the breakfast the students were taken to Parson's valley dam. Prof. Kandasamy gave a session on the water harvesting strategies of TamilNadu. There are eight lakes covering the highest to the lowest catchment in The Nilgirisare Upper Bhavani, Western Catchment 1-2-3, Portimund, Avalanche, Emerald and Parson Valley. They were explained about the structural function of dam. The structure of rivers adjoining Karnataka, Tamil Nadu and Kerala. The major river systems originating in the Western Ghats are Godavari, Kaveri, Krishna, Thamiraparani, Vaigai and Tungabhadra. The majorities of streams draining the Western Ghats joins these rivers, and carry large volume of water during the monsoon months. These rivers flow to the east due to the gradient of the land and drain out into the Bay of Bengal. Major tributaries include Kali, Bhadra, Bhavani, Bhima, Malaprabha, Ghataprabha, Hemavathi and Kabini. The students were highly enlightened about the river system of Western Ghats.

After the visit to the dam, the students were gathered at the cottage hall for the last session. A student from each department stood up as to represent their feedback on the experience during the camp. Last but not the Least, a sincere sense of gratitude towards the District Forest Officer, The Nilgiris were not left unmentioned. The students were very excited and were not willing to leave for the backward journey to their homes. After the lunch, the students were instructed for packing their belongings and prepare for the return journey. These students and faculties are very fortunate to get this opportunity to attend this Eco education nature camp. This camp gave environmental awareness to the younger generation which is need of today. This Eco education nature camp should be continued to educate the importance of our ecosystem.

PLACE : THE UNITED ORPHANAGE FOR THE DISABLED, KURUMBAPALAYAM

TIME : 12.00 pm - 3.00 pm

TOPIC : CLEAN INDIA

INTRODUCTION :

Ageing describes the process of growing old. A mental illness is a condition that affects a person's thinking, feeling or mood. Elderly care serves the need for fulfillment and requirements that are unique to senior citizens. The most important part of caring for the elderly is to love them and keep them happy. There are many different ways to care for the elderly i.e., to love them by caring them in comfort of their own homes, bringing them to your home or by moving them to a senior center. We B.Sc Mathematics (CA) has achieved the above motive by moving to a orphanage and also learnt that "If you want happiness for a lifetime, help somebody". through 'UNITED ORPHANAGE' at Kurumbapalayam.

OBJECTIVE :-

Our main objective of going to the orphanage is

- *To render service to those people with mental illness and physically challenged.
- *To spend some valuable time among the elderly people.

Initially our main motive is to enrich them with happiness and self-confidence. To accomplish this a motivational speech was delivered by Ms. Sadhana. She successfully achieved her moto of spreading happiness within themselves and also motivated them to live independently through her speech.

ACTIVITY - II:

The second activity was something different, a comic story was narrated by Ms. Nalini. The story enlightened their faces with smile, consolation and laughter and it also paved way to throw light among every soul. Everyone listened and responded to it by repeating the story after her.

ACTIVITY - III:

The next event at orphanage was taken over by Ms. Maheshwari. She narrated a fabulous story about "Thenali Raman" that thought provoked every individual in the orphanage. BIOZENITH ASSOCIATION

DATE: 04.01.2018

DAY: Thursday.

PLACE: Panchayat Union Middle School, Nehru Nagar, Coimbatore – 641 048

TOPIC: “Blood Group Identification Camp”.

DISCRIPTION:

“Blood Group Identification camp” was Jointly organized with our college National Service Scheme to Panchayat Union Middle School, Nehru Nagar, Coimbatore – 641 048.30 Students along with 2 staffs.

OBJECTIVE:

Blood group identification is the key step to ensure blood transfusion safety. In the case of emergency blood transfusion, rapid identification of the type of blood is essential, directly related to the survival of the patient. The ABO blood group system is found and identified as the first human blood group system by Austria Rand Steiner in early nineteenth Century. Blood groups are divided into four types i.e. A, B, AB and O. ABO blood group detection follows the agglutination method and then it goes for machine recognition. The agglutination reaction means that occurred reaction between the antibody and the antigen, indicating the presence of the antigen.

EXTENSION/ OUTREACH PROGRAM- NUTRIOPTIMIZER –LINEAR PROGRAMMING

Organized by

DEPARTMENT OF FOOD SCIENCE AND NUTRITION

DATE:10/08/2017

DAY: Thursday

DESCRIPTION:

Nutriooptimizer –Linear programming tool is a software designed by Sri mookambikainfosystems and the lecture cum demonstration was given to the III.B.Sc FSN and IM.Sc FSN students on 10/08/2017

Sri MookambikaInfosystems', have developed “Nutriooptimizer” a Diet Optimization Software based on Linear Programming. This versatile tool can also be used in arriving at Food Based Recommendations and formulation of Supplementary Food, Complementary Food and Ready to Use Therapeutic Food (RUTF).

From the chosen food or preferred foods with given minimum & maximum serving sizes, the best combination of food with required serving sizes satisfying all nutritional requirements is achieved by linear programming. It is not a direct addition of Food Nutrient values; but is mathematical optimization method (Linear Programming). This helps to identify optimal food combination with serving sizes satisfying most of the 32 nutrients values.

Key Features :

- ☐ Normally in Linear Programming result will not come when constraints value are not satisfied. This can be resolved using methods like
 - Auto Constraint Elimination
 - Auto Relaxation (10 methods provided) &
 - RDA Relaxation (Low relax 7 options provided) to arrive at a first solution to identify problem nutrients; final solution meeting the target RDA can be achieved by changing the quantity or adding / deleting foods.
- ☐ On screen editing facility to modify Min/ Max RDA values of :
 - Calories, Macronutrients, Micronutrients
 - Cost
 - Price of each food
 - Grams Per Serving
 - Min/Max Serving Values
- ☐ Cost also can be selected as objective or constraint.
- ☐ USDA Food Data Base is included in the software.
- ☐ New Foods can be added in the Data Base.
- ☐ Recipe calculator is provided to arrive at food nutrient values.
- ☐ Facility to save / recall for any future modifications.

Diet optimization can be achieved for different combination of Nutrient Rich foods along with staple food to arrive at FBRs. Option is also provided to develop FBRs with Calorie / Cost as an objective. Results can be exported in 'Excel' format for comparison and finalization of FBRs.

This tool will be useful for education; it will allow nutrition students to very quickly arrive optimum / balanced diet. This Software will be useful for Master Degree Students so that it could become a standard tool for the Nutritionist/ Dietician.

EXTENSION/ OUTREACH PROGRAM- WORLD FOOD DAY

PROGRAMMING

Organized by

DEPARTMENT OF FOOD SCIENCE AND NUTRITION

DATE: 16/10/2017

DAY: Monday

TOPIC : World Food Day

OBJECTIVE : To create awareness about the importance of world food day.

Description::

"Change the future of migration. Invest in food security and rural development."

Hunger, poverty, climate change, conflicts and political instability has forced many people to flee their homes than at any time since the Second World War. By investing in rural development, the international community can tackle migration's potential to support development and build the resilience of displaced and host communities, thereby laying the ground for long-term recovery and inclusive and sustainable growth.

Food insecurity is not just about insufficient food production, availability, and intake, but is also about the poor quality or nutritional value of the food. While, for example, most staple foods such as cereals, tubers and pulses are rich in Vitamin C, they have very low concentrations of iron, Vitamin A and zinc.

Improving low-income areas access to affordable foods would be a significant step towards healthier communities but this is challenging. Programs need to be developed at local and national levels to increase the dietary quality and diversity of foods consumed by at-risk populations through promoting the consumption of affordable nutrient-dense foods including fruits, vegetables, and protein-rich foods, and lowering the intake of added sugars and refined grains. School-related policies which provide nutritious meals to children who are otherwise not receiving these at home provides an example of a good starting point.

Event Outcome:

- Awareness about the importance of world food day was given
- The seriousness of Food insecurity was emphasized.

Organized by

Department of Banking & Insurance

DATE: 31.01.2018

PLACE: Government Higher Secondary School, Kalapatti, Coimbatore

DESCRIPTION:

Saving of money is necessary for future financial well-being of an individual. Factors such as high standard of living, change in attitudes, inflation etc. involve money spending thus making it an uphill battle to strike a balance between spending and saving. Therefore it becomes important to make a monthly habit to put aside a little money to ensure future financial stability at an early age itself. The primary objective of opening a Savings Bank account is one of the first accounts we open as soon as we cross the age of 18. It is important to get your income and its proof, save money and use it whenever required. Almost all banks in India now offer zero balance savings account online and offline. Some have preferred opening their bank account online and others have rather visited their nearest bank branch to open a savings account offline.
