Report: Ms. J. Malathi and Nowsin Banu, Department of Microbiology, PSG College of Arts and Science, Coimbatore have undergone consultancy on Lyophilizing in Biochemistry Laboratory, Dr. N. G. P. Arts and Science College, Coimbatore. They had done research which amplifies their knowledge. Lyophilizing is a cost-effective method for biological specimen preservation but detailed tissue-specific reference protocols are still lacking. Moreover, data are limited on the long-term stability of proteins and nucleic acids in lyophilized samples. The consultancy course covered the fee of Rs.400/-.

Report: Ms.Nowsin Banu.S and Bala- PSG College of Arts and Science, Coimbatore have undergone consultancy on Lyophilizing in Biochemistry Laboratory, Dr. N. G. P. Arts and Science College, Coimbatore. They had done research for expanding knowledge in their field. They paid Rs.200/- for consultancy programme on Lyophilizing is a process in which water is removed from a product after it is frozen and placed under a vacuum, allowing the ice to change directly from solid to vapor without passing through a liquid phase. The process consists of three separate, unique, and interdependent processes; freezing, primary drying (sublimation), and secondary drying (desorption). They finally did their research successfully.

Report: The main objective of this project is to amplify the given Clinicalbacterial DNA samples for 16S RNA gene amplification for NANOLAB DIAGNOSTICS private limited. PCR assays were carried out in a PCR System thermal cycler using a standard PCR protocol. The cycling conditions consisted of 5 min of initial denaturation at 95 °C, followed by 30 cycles consisting of 30-s denaturation at 95 °C, 30-s annealing at the adequate annealing temperature, and a 30-s extension period at 72 °C with a final period of 10-min extension. 30 clinical samples were amplified with a protocol of PCR targeting the bacterial 16S rRNA gene. This project is useful for customers and agency for obtaining amplicons of the clinical DNA samples using primers specific for 16S RNA gene. Complementary role and usefulness of applying molecular methods in diagnosis of clinical samples

Feedback:

All the samples given were amplified and useful for further processes

Report:

The main objective of this project is to detect and quantifying peptides, proteins, antibodies, and hormones present in biological sample. This application will simplify and speed the process from cancer screening to drug and pregnancy testing. It is also used for the Identification of cancer biomarkers for the early detection of cancer is a challenge that is continuously being developed and researched, Detection of platelet antibodies, Food allergens and detecting viruses. The manual method was found to be tedious, especially when carried out for a large number of samples, this makes the entire process time consuming and error prone.

Feedback:

- Diagnose various kinds of Diseases.
- Hosting the application in food industry to detect any food allergens present
- To evaluate the spread of the disease during disease outbreak.

Report: The main objective of this project is to quantifying the Ig G Antibodies in human sera during viral infection for NANOLAB DIAGNOSTICS private limited. The number of binding antibodies (Ig G) was evaluated in all patients at the time of admission as well as during convalescence. The Ig G levels in blood samples from non-infected patients were also assessed as a negative control. The antibody amount in the serum samples from convalescent patients was higher than that at the time of admission for all tested antibodies (Ig G, Ig A, Ig M, Ig D and Ig E). Overall, the on-admission Ig M and was higher than Ig G, which was in agreement with the general understanding that the levels of Ig M increase more rapidly than those of Ig G after antigen exposure in patients with a viral infection. It is widely used in several clinical fields due to its rapid reaction, wide dynamic ranges, and high reproducibility compared with standard enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA)

This project is useful for customers and agency to getting the immune status of an individual while virus infection in simple manner. The interference of common blood components was assessed by adding interfering substances into plasma samples. The changes between samples with and without all types of interfering substances were less than 15%.

Feedback:

- Improve the quantification efficiency in a simple and rapid way.
- Diagnosis of viral infection at earliest stage.

Report:

The main objective of this project is to diagnose the microbial infection by cultural analysis for MEDLINE LAB private company limited. This analysis will be accurate and produce a reliable result in the diagnosis of appropriate infection. This is a characteristic method of clinical specimen process with the help of microbiological knowledge. This provides a sophisticated approach to the customer in a simple and accurate way. The diagnostic methodology will be varying rely on the types of microbial infections and this approach provides a much information about the causative agent and clinical manifestation produced by the microbes. The normal routine method of diagnosis was found to be tedious, especially when carried out for a large number of customers, this makes the entire process time consuming and error prone.

This project is fruitful opportunity for the student and Medline Lab to get a large number of samples from the customer. This method of diagnostic procedure is harmonized and the analyst can easily follow the steps without deviation. Finally the project provides a good opportunity for the student and the agency because the data occurred in the analysis will be used for future reference. Hence it is beneficial to both consultant and the consultancy.

Phytochemical Analysis

The phytochemical screening of aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia showed the presence of alkaloids, flavonoids, phenols, steroids and sterols, terpenoids, tannins, amino acids and protein, carbohydrate, Oil and fats. The presence of these secondary metabolites in plants explains the various uses of plants in drug development. They are formed during the metabolic process of plants.

Antioxidant Activity

The scavenging effects of aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia and standard ascorbic acid on DPPH radicals were compared. On the DPPH radical, aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia had significant scavenging effects with decreasing concentration in the range of 20-100 µg/ml when compared with the standard ascorbic acid in the range of 20-100 µg/ml. From the results, it was found that the percentage of inhibition was decreasing with decreasing concentration of aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia and standard. IC₅₀ value of plant extract and standard was found to be 45.33 µg/ml and 44.08 µg/ml. The radical scavenging and antioxidant potential of the plant extracts were determined by the ability of plant extracts to scavenge the stable free radical TRAP. The absorbance was measured at 490nm. From the results, it is found that the percentage of inhibition was decreasing with decreasing concentration of Anredera cordifolia plant extract and standard. IC₅₀ values of extract and standard was found to be 56.76 µg/ml and 10.96 µg/ml. The antioxidant potential of aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia was estimated for their ability to reduce TPTZ-Fe (III) complex to TPTZ-Fe (II) along with standard ascorbic acid. From the results, it was found that the percentage of inhibition was increasing with increasing concentration of plant extract and standard. IC₅₀ values of extract and standard was found to be 107.2 µmol (Fe (II))/g and 54.99 µmol (Fe (II))/g.

In this study, the ABTS⁺⁺ ability of a aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia was compared with ascorbic acid shows more pronounced activity in a dose- dependent manner. The percentage activity of a aqueous extract of Anredera cordifolia shows minimum inhibition of about 7.56% at 20 µg/ml and the maximum inhibition of about 49.9% at 100 µg/ml, whereas the standard shows minimum inhibition of about 28.4% at 20 µg/ml and the maximum inhibition of about 69% at 100 µg/ml. The IC₅₀ of the extract was found to be 99.47 µg/ml comparable to reference standard ascorbic acid to 66.26 µg/ml. The extract showed potent antioxidant activity in ABTS method which is comparable to the standard used. From the results, it is found that the percentage of

Report:

The main objective of this project is to automate Websites for Spider I Soft private company limited. This project is based on a website development for one of their clients Kannan Garments situated in Tiruppur. Initially the company had no website for their promotion. This website developed for them was really very useful. Since its a clothing and export company it would enhance its sales by getting foreign orders. This projected website provides a quick and easy way of communicating information between buyers and sellers. We can list our opening hours, contact information, show images of your location or products, and use contact forms to facilitate enquiries from potential customers or feedback from existing ones.

Report:

The main objective of this project is to employ enterprise resource planning (ERP) for various reasons, such as expanding business, reducing costs, and improving operations. The benefits sought and realized by one company may be different from another; however, there are some worth noting.

Integrating and automating business processes eliminates redundancies, improves accuracy, and improves productivity. Departments with interconnected processes can now synchronize work to achieve faster and better outcomes. Some businesses benefit from enhanced reporting of real-time data from a single source system. Accurate and complete reporting help companies adequately plan, budget, forecast, and communicate the state of operations to the organization and interested parties, such as shareholders.

ERPs allow businesses to quickly access needed information for clients, vendors, and business partners, contributing to improved customer and employee satisfaction, quicker response rates, and increased accuracy rates. Associated costs often decrease as the company operates more efficiently. Departments are better able to collaborate and share knowledge; a newly synergized workforce can improve productivity and employee satisfaction as employees are better able to see how each functional group contributes to the mission and vision of the company. Also, menial, manual tasks are eliminated, allowing employees to allocate their time to more meaningful work.

REPORT

The main objective of this project “Rectification of problems during Spent solvent Distillation”, is in connection with the processing difficulties of the solvent distillation unit in an industry. Solvent purification through distillation is an industrial process carried out for the purpose of purification of the spent or impure solvent. Commercially important organic solvents like ethyl acetate, xylene, toluene, iso propyl alcohol and acetone are used in large quantity for the industrial purpose, research and also some commercial application. The recovery of pure solvent from large quantity of spent solvent is a required process to maintain not to pollute the environment due to organic solvents. When the purification process is tested in the laboratory compared to industrial purification, it is not 100% successful. So, a special technique or a treatment procedure is required for every individual solvent to be purified. This project undertaken may find a solution to rectify various problems in association with industrial distillation process of organic solvents. The method developed in this project would enable the industry to recover 100% or to the extent of 90% organic solvents from the spent. Hence, this project may be a beneficial one for the customer industry.

Report:

Python is the most dynamic language for data science today. From backend development, to in-depth ML learning and statistical analysis. It is intuitive, flexible, and perhaps most importantly-wildly supported from an open-source perspective. It is fairly easy to learn, and incredibly powerful. It is rivaled perhaps only by R in terms of analytics and stats.

The main objective of this training program is The most popular companies that use Python are Google for its mainframe foundation, DropBox for its cloud-based services, YouTube for the integration of streaming videos into their internet pages, Twitter for posting tweets, Instagram for its Django framework, Wikipedia MoinMoin is a wikiengine, WAS for Nasa are a few examples.

The training was given to 25 candidates from Schools, College students. At the end of the course mini project given to all the candidate to evaluate their programming skill and problem solving ability using Python.
